Greetings from the Arthur Hufnagel Library Staff

Hello Glen Rock!! Was April the longest month ever??!!

I didn't think we'd be closed this long; I should have checked out more books. I miss everyone at the Library and hopefully we will be open soon.

Check our Facebook page for updates and online activities.

@HufnagelLibrary

Don't forget May 1st is Give Local York!! We know times are tough right now, but any donation is appreciated.

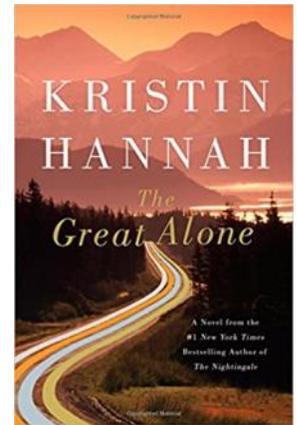

Keep reading, keep busy and let's hope we get back to normal soon!!

After weeks of not putting my hands on a solid book from the library I went digital. I grabbed my iPad, typed in yorklibraries.org and tapped the e-book button. I selected and "checked out" and downloaded The Great Alone by Kristin Hannah.

This is a survival story in many aspects as a family relocates to Alaska to live a simpler life—living off the grid, no indoor plumbing, hunting and fishing and working the long summer days to preserve food for the long, dark winter.

I did say it was a great story, right? It's an adventure to the wilderness of Alaska.

April showers bring May flowers. Even with all that's happening around us, the earth still follows its rhythm. I love seeing the beautiful flowering trees and gardens beginning to bloom. The Curious Garden by Peter Brown is a wonderful children's story of a boy who starts a small urban garden and watches it spread throughout the city. This book can be found on Bookflix and Hoopla. You may read and/or watch the story.

Take some time to notice the gardens in your neighborhood. You may point out to your child flowers that are planted in a garden, ones that are wild, and container gardens.

Use art materials you have at home such as construction paper, play-doh, or even Legos to make flowers. You may have lots of time on your hands, or this may be an extra busy time, but it's always good to stop and smell the roses.
