PAUL SMITH LIBRARY NEWS, INFORMATION & EVENTS

Join us in the Garden on Monday, July 23 at 6:00pm for an evening of music. Enjoy the sounds of the saxophone from the hey-day of the instrument's popularity.

The Occasional Saxophone Quartet is comprised of four seasoned musicians who met through their involvement in numerous local ensembles. They perform a fun and informative program called "The Golden Age of the Saxophone" featuring music from the hey-day (1910s - 1940s) of the saxophone's popularity. The repertoire includes arrangements for saxophone quartet ranging from hymns of the era to ragtime, Sousa marches, and novelty tunes.

Local Author: Nancy Heaps

Local Author Series with Nancy Heaps Saturday, July 7 at 10:30am

Nancy's first book, "Daniel's 70th Week", was published in 2007 under her former married name (Burgen). In mid-2012, Nancy saw Yahweh's (the personal name for God) pursuit of her via Holy Spirit's incredible activity in her life. Before long, she became deeply passionate about her spiritual faith journey. Over the next few years, Nancy's Christian faith went through a sort of metamorphosis process. Her second book "Becoming Still, A Journey With Yahweh" contains stories and lessons about this process. In 2016 Nancy and those close to her traversed tremendous trials, endured only due to Yahweh's incredible Presence and assistance. Nancy's third book "Being Still, Abiding in Yahweh" tells the stories and lessons gained from that year.

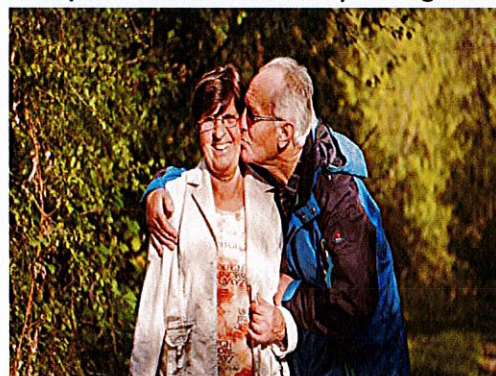

Gourd Crafts

We are going to welcome the season of the sunflower by crafting a sunflower luminary! We will be woodburning the outline and detail of the sunflower and will use paint or stain to color in and stain the background of the gourd. Handtools will be used to drill holes for the light to shine through. You will be taking your creation home so that you can light with battery operated candles (not included). A supply and workshop fee of $25 will be collected at class on Monday, July 30 at 5:30pm. Maximum participants limited to 10 so contact the library to sign up early!

HEALTH LITERACY

What is Health Literacy?

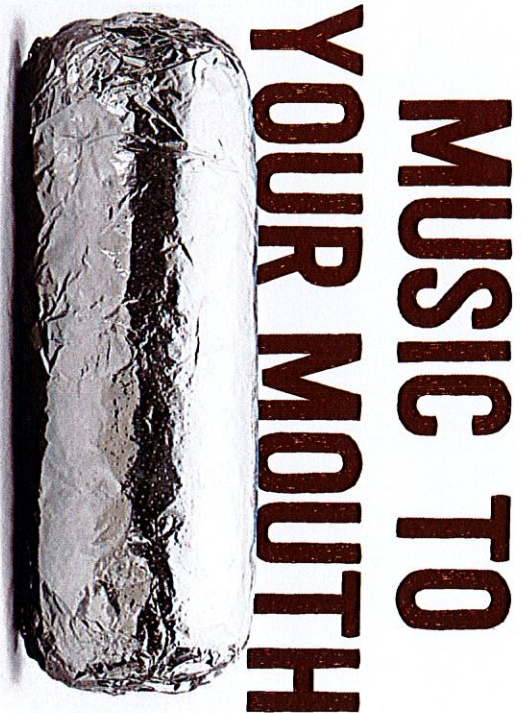

Health Literacy is the knowledge and ability to manage your own health and wellness.

Why does Health Literacy Matter? (statistics taken from www.paforward.org)

- Nearly half of all adults have difficulty understanding and using health information.
- Far more people look for health information online than see a doctor on a typical day.
- Nothing – not age, income, employment status, education level, or racial and ethnic background – affects health status more than literacy skills.
- Populations most likely to suffer from low health literacy include those age 65 and over, minorities, immigrant populations, and Medicare/Medicaid recipients.
- Forty-six percent of American adults cannot understand the label on their prescription medicine.

How does the Library support Health Literacy?

- Health workshops
- Wellness programs
- A variety of print materials on health, wellness, and fitness topics.
