INVASIVES AT THE LIBRARY

"Invasives! So, What's the Big Deal?" will be the title for the next Third Wednesday Series Program on April 16th at 6:30 PM

Tim Abbey will share his knowledge and insight in the library's Community Room.

Mr. Abbey is the York County Commercial Horticultural Educator through Penn State Extension Office.
Topics for the evening will include both insects and plant species and how they impact agriculture, recreation, health, economics, and ecology locally, as well as worldwide.

Mr. Abbey is a native of Pennsylvania, having degrees from the University of Maryland and is currently in his 18th year with PSU Extension. If you have ever wondered about the emerald ash borer, the spotted lanternfly or any of the other invasives, Mr. Abbey is our local expert with information about where they came from and how to deal with them.
