CONSIDER CYCLING

If you are looking for a fulfilling hobby or sport, you might consider cycling. To get started, it is affordable, requires minimal skill (can you ride a bike?) and has benefits that are numerous and rewarding. Getting exercise, supporting your mental health and providing opportunities for both exploration and social interaction are just a few of the ways that cycling can enrich your life.

Larry Bickford is the speaker for the next Third Wednesday Series of community programs at the library. He has decades of personal experience exploring all of the wonderful aspects and benefits of this sport that he has acquired enjoying both individual and group cycling including several long touring rides.

Please join us on Wednesday, May 21st at 6:30 PM to hear and enjoy all the information and experiences that Larry has gathered in his many years learning about and enjoying this sport.
