LOCAL AUTHOR TAKES US "DOWNEYOSHUN"

If you're looking for a good summer read, you might consider a book written by a local author who will be the featured speaker at June's Third Wednesday of Community Programs at the library.

Art Young of New Freedom will lead a discussion of his recently published book "Downeyoshun" that was sought after for publication by Apprentice Press of Loyola University in Maryland. This is a coming of age story about Sally, a gifted young girl in East Baltimore who, despite an abusive mother, finds love and support from her father, her best friend Marie, Marie's family, and especially Sally's Aunt and Uncle in the summertime heaven-on-earth Sally loves: Ocean City Maryland.

With the unconditional love, care and support she gets from her "found family," she is able to survive and thrive to reach her biggest dreams.

Art Young is a veteran of the Navy, the Vietnam War, and Agent Orange, but he prefers to be defined by his gift as a storyteller. He will share his journey from his early attempts at writing as a student to becoming a successful author of this very compelling book in retirement. How he came upon the idea for this book as well as his unique style of writing will be inspiring to anyone who may have considered writing a book or who just loves to read!

Please plan to join us for this Free program on

Wednesday, June 18th at 6:30 PM
