MARTIN LIBRARY HONORS

Jackie Summers

Jackie Summers has been actively engaged in the York County community for more than 36 years, both as a volunteer and as a worker in the non-profit sector. She has contributed her expertise in organizational planning, fundraising, board development and leadership. Jackie recently retired as Senior Director of Development & Corporate Engagement for Penn-Mar Human Services.

She has held volunteer leadership roles for several organizations, and is especially passionate about libraries. Notably, she has served as board chair for both Martin Library and York County Libraries. Jackie regards libraries as essential components of our communities, offering gateways to knowledge, learning, and personal growth.

In addition to the boards she serves on, she has also been a mentor to women through Leadership York and the York County Economic Alliance (YCEA). Jackie is also a York Federal Fellow of The White Rose Leadership Institute.

Jackie has been recognized for her commitment to the community. In 2024, YCEA presented her with the ATHENA Leadership Award®. She has also received the Junior Achievement Lifetime Achievement Award, the Central Penn Business Journal Women of Influence – Circle of Excellence Award, the Southern Community Services Volunteer of the Year Award and the New Freedom Lions Club Award for Outstanding Service and Dedication.

Ever since childhood, Jackie has had a deep affinity for literature. She was often immersed in stories that transported her to faraway places and fascinating characters. Her elementary school in Lancaster County used a learning system which fostered reading advancement, and this accelerated her love for books. Reading was also integral to her family dynamic, as her parents were avid readers—returning from the library weekly with stacks of books. Her siblings continue to have a voracious appetite for great stories.

Her husband, Mike is also a fan of reading. It's no surprise that their children, Madison and Chase, embraced the power of literature from an early age. This impacted them throughout their upbringing. As adults, they continue to be enthusiastic book lovers.
